NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION TO DISMISS

TO ALL PARTIES AND THEIR COUNSEL OF RECORD:

3 PLEASE TAKE NOTICE THAT at 2:00 p.m. on April 6, 2023, or as soon thereafter as 4 counsel may be heard, in Courtroom 2 of this Court, at 1301 Clay Street, Oakland, California, 5 before the Honorable Haywood S. Gilliam, Defendant Kirkland & Ellis LLP (“Kirkland”) will and 6 hereby does move this Court for an order striking as meritless Plaintiff Zoya Kovalenko’s SLAPP 7 allegations regarding: (1) Kirkland’s response to an unemployment benefits claim filed with the 8 D.C. Office of Employment Services; (2) allegations that Kirkland’s litigation filings constituted 9 discriminatory, retaliatory and/or defamatory conduct; and (3) correspondence from Defendants’ 10 counsel concerning the lack of merit to Plaintiff’s allegations in her Equal Employment 11 Opportunity Commission (“EEOC”) and California Department of Fair Employment and Housing 12 (“DFEH”) filings. As Code of Civil Procedure Code section 425.16 requires, Kirkland asks that the 13 Court award fees incurred in connection with this motion.

MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

I. INTRODUCTION

16 In another example of the many legal and factual defects that plague her employment-based 17 claims (and are addressed in Defendants' Motions to Dismiss and Strike filed herewith), Plaintiff's 18 Complaint incorporates allegations that fall squarely within the protections of the California Anti-19 SLAPP statute. Because those protected allegations are mixed with allegations that are not 20 protected by the Anti-SLAPP statute, Plaintiff must establish that she can prevail on the protected
21 SLAPP contentions to avoid the Court granting this motion and striking them. Baral v. Schnitt, 1 22 Cal.5th 376, 395 (2016) ("[I]n cases involving allegations of both protected and unprotected 23 activity, the plaintiff is required to establish a probability of prevailing on any claim for relief based 24 on allegations of protected activity. Unless the plaintiff can do so, the claim and its corresponding 25 allegations must be stricken") (emphasis added); Sheley v. Harrop, 9 Cal. App. 5th 1147, 1170 26 (2017) (overturning denial of SLAPP motion: where mixed allegations of protected and unprotected 27 conduct purport to support claims, protected allegations must be eliminated "unless they support a

1 distinct claim on which respondent can show a probability of prevailing") (emphasis added).

2 Here, Plaintiff alleges that she was discriminated and retaliated against during and after her 3 Kirkland employment, including with respect to Defendants' response to her post-termination
 4 unemployment claim (see Compl. ¶233: "Defendants . . . knowingly lied about Plaintiff's 5 employment in further retaliation" to the government agency); with respect to Kirkland's decisions 6 regarding filings in Patent Office proceedings (see id. ¶190, alleging Defendants changed a filing 7 in a patent matter "to cloak their reliance on Plaintiff's work and arguments"); and in Defendants' 8 correspondence regarding the defects in her as-filed DFEH and EEOC administrative charges (see 9 id. ¶182, alleging that Defendants' counsel sent "a series of legally and factually fallacious 10 communications" regarding her charges "in an attempt to intimidate and dissuade Plaintiff from 11 filing suit"). See also id. ¶182 (alleging counsel's correspondence constitutes "efforts to fabricate
 12 ex post facto evidence as purported support for their false and malicious statements that Plaintiff 13 was dreadfully incompetent at her job as an associate").

14 As discussed below, each of these allegations falls squarely within the anti-SLAPP 15 protections for statements made before an official proceeding authorized by law or in connection 16 with an issue under consideration or review by an official proceeding. And Plaintiff cannot come 17 close to showing that she can prevail on any of these SLAPP allegations, as she is required to do.
 18 Accordingly, Kirkland asks the Court to strike these allegations from the Complaint and reimburse 19 the attorneys' fees that this motion required.

20 II. PLAINTIFF'S COMPLAINT INCLUDES AND RELIES UPON CONDUCT
PROTECTED BY THE ANTI-SLAPP STATUTE

21 As Plaintiff alleges, Kirkland terminated her employment after only seven months of work
 22 following a highly negative assessment of her performance by multiple partners. The criticisms 23 included statements that supervisors were required to rewrite her written work (see Compl. ¶¶170 24 n.51, 171, 173); her refusal or inability to comply with instructions (id. ¶153); poor time 25 management and inconsistency of work quality (id. ¶¶85 n.16, 90 n.21, 171 n.52); as well as 26 significant issues with her judgment and communications (id. ¶¶94, 103 n.23, 158, 209).

1 Plaintiff admits that some of these alleged discriminators were also involved in 2 recommending or deciding to hire her, as well as to staff her on cases for which they were 3 responsible. See, e.g., id. ¶¶24, 240, 250, 260, 271, 273; Bradley v. Harcourt, Brace & Co., 104 4 F.3d 267, 270-71 (9th Cir. 1996) (“where the same actor is responsible for both the hiring and the 5 firing of a discrimination plaintiff, and both actions occur within a short period of time, a strong 6 inference arises that there was no discriminatory motive”); Coghlan v. Am. Seafoods Co., 413 F.3d 7 1090, 1096 (9th Cir. 2005) (same actor inference applies to adverse actions other than firing).
 8 Nonetheless, Plaintiff attacks the many performance criticisms as motivated by her gender, alleges 9 that male employees were not subject to similar criticisms and work conditions, and argues that 10 work assignments and supervision were contradictory or unnecessary. She asserts claims for gender 11 discrimination, equal pay violations, retaliation, failure to prevent California Fair Employment and 12 Housing Act (“FEHA”) violations, intentional and negligent infliction of emotional distress, and 13 defamation.

14 Many of her claims and contentions, while highly defective as addressed in Defendants’ 15 Motions to Dismiss and Strike, are not protected by the Anti-SLAPP statute. However, as discussed 16 below, intermixed with Plaintiff’s unprotected allegations are contentions that Kirkland retaliated 17 against Plaintiff in relation to judicial and governmental filings, as well as defamed and mistreated 18 her through communications with Defendants’ counsel regarding Plaintiff’s administrative filings.
 19 These are classic SLAPP allegations as addressed below.

20 A. Kirkland’s Alleged Response to Plaintiff’s Unemployment Claim

21 Under the heading “Kirkland Continued Retaliating Against Plaintiff Long After Her 22 Unlawful Termination,” Plaintiff alleges that she applied for unemployment benefits with the D.C.
 23 Office of Employment Services that “did not process her claims.” Compl. ¶233. She alleges that 24 Kirkland responded to her claim by falsely stating she had never worked at Kirkland. Id. She 25 contends that Defendants “knowingly lied about Plaintiff’s employment in further retaliation and 26 in an attempt to inappropriately, unlawfully withhold benefits from Plaintiff, thereby increasing the 27 financial pressure on Plaintiff to drop her claims against Defendants” and that “Plaintiff has still

1 not received a very large portion of the benefits to which she is entitled.” Id. She incorporates that 2 allegation in each claim for relief in her Complaint. Id. ¶¶301, 312, 319, 325, 327, 334, 338, 343, 3 351, 357, 362, 368.

4 B. Defendants’ IPR Filings

5 To support her allegation that “Defendants engaged in efforts to fabricate ex-post facto 6 evidence as purported support for their false and malicious statements about Plaintiff in their 7 evaluations of her” (id. ¶182), Plaintiff alleges that she worked on a patent owner response (“POR”)
 8 in an Inter Partes Review (“IPR”) proceeding (id. ¶¶ 187-89). In an IPR proceeding, a third party
 9 seeks to invalidate one or more patent claims before the United States Patent Trial and Appeal 10 Board (“PTAB”).

11 According to Plaintiff, after she worked on the POR, Defendants edited it to “cloak their 12 reliance on Plaintiff’s work and arguments” as a “necessary countermeasure given the outlandish 13 and malicious nature of the lies proffered regarding Plaintiff’s performance in their defamatory 14 ‘evaluations.’” Id. ¶190. She incorporates this allegation in every claim for relief in her Complaint.
 15 See, e.g., id. ¶¶301, 312, 319, 325, 327, 334, 338, 343, 351, 357, 362, 368.

16 C. Communications with Defendants’ Counsel Regarding Plaintiff’s Filings

17 Seeking to bolster her post-termination retaliation allegations, Plaintiff relies upon 18 communications with counsel for Defendants related to her administrative complaint, alleging:

19 After Defendants were served with the administrative complaint/charge, Kirkland’s 20 general counsel and the prominent employment defense counsel retained by 21 Defendants sent a series of legally and factually fallacious letters to Plaintiff in an 22 attempt to intimidate and dissuade Plaintiff from filing suit. This correspondence 23 repeated that Plaintiff was fired because of poor performance. It was not until 24 Defendants’ ninth correspondence (following four letters, one telephonic 25 conference, and four emails) that Defendants, through their outside counsel, for the first time acknowledged that “of course there may have been things [Plaintiff] did well at the firm” and further claimed for the first time that Plaintiff’s good work did not outweigh the “many flaws in [Plaintiff’s] performance.” In addition to this shift in Defendants’ position, their counsel further strayed from Defendants’ repeated, original rationale for firing Plaintiff, newly attributing Plaintiff’s termination to a novel and generalized assertion that Plaintiff was “not a good fit.”

26 Id. ¶19. Plaintiff goes on to allege that “Defendants seek to rewrite history by proffering new 27 rationale for Plaintiff’s termination because the original, exclusively performance-based rationale 28

1 that was used as pretext to fire Plaintiff is indefensible, demonstrably malicious, and encapsulates 2 Defendants' discriminatory and retaliatory treatment of Plaintiff." Id. She later repeats, in 3 connection with her defamation allegations, the contention that "Defendants continued to defame 4 Plaintiff . . . Defendants' outside counsel repeated this bald-faced lie in her May 6, 2022 letter." Id.
 5 ¶170 n.51; see also id. ¶182 ("Because Defendants lacked actual examples showing deficient work 6 performance by Plaintiff, Defendants engaged in efforts to fabricate ex post facto evidence as 7 purported support for their false and malicious statements that Plaintiff was dreadfully incompetent 8 at her job as an associate"). As with the anti-SLAPP allegations above, Plaintiff incorporates these 9 allegations in each of her claims. See, e.g., id. ¶¶301, 312, 319, 325, 327, 334, 338, 343, 351, 357, 10 362, 368.

11 Each of these allegations falls within the protected activity that the Anti-SLAPP statute 12 targets.

13 III. CALIFORNIA'S ANTI-SLAPP STATUTE BARS PLAINTIFF'S CLAIMS

14 The California Legislature enacted Civil Procedure Code section 425.16, commonly 15 referred to as the anti-SLAPP statute, as a remedy for disposal of lawsuits that impede the exercise 16 of constitutional rights. See Macias v. Hartwell, 55 Cal. App. 4th 669, 672 (1997); Rusheen v.
 17 Cohen, 37 Cal.4th 1048, 1055-56 (2006). As the statute expressly requires, courts construe section 18 425.16 broadly to provide expansive protection against SLAPP claims. See CCP § 425.16(a); 19 Briggs v. Eden Council for Hope & Opportunity, 19 Cal.4th 1106, 1119-20 (1999); Kashian v.
 20 Harriman, 98 Cal. App. 4th 892, 905 (2002).

21 An anti-SLAPP motion is analyzed in a two-step process. The defendant shows the 22 challenged claim arises from protected activity by demonstrating that the conduct underlying the 23 claim fits within one of section 425.16's categories of protections. CCP § 425.16(b)(1). Those 24 categories include two at issue here: (1) statements or writings made before an official proceeding 25 authorized by law; and (2) statements or writings made in connection with an issue under 26 consideration or review by an official proceeding authorized by law. CCP § 425.16(e)(1)-(2). The 27 phrase "official proceeding authorized by law" encompasses proceedings that resemble judicial and 28

1 legislative proceedings, such as transactions of administrative boards and quasi-judicial and quasi-2 legislative proceedings. See, e.g., Kibler v. N. Inyo Cnty. Loc. Hosp. Dist., 39 Cal.4th 192, 201-03
 3 (2006) (participation in hospital peer review protected by anti-SLAPP statute); Vergos v. McNeal, 4 146 Cal. App. 4th 1387, 1399 (2007) (participation in university grievance investigation of 5 employee protected by anti-SLAPP statute).

6 The Court considers the complaint and defendant's declarations in determining whether the 7 conduct is protected. CCP § 425.16(b)(2); Salma v. Capon, 161 Cal. App. 4th 1275, 1286 (2008)
 8 (“Capon’s contacts with municipal departments were only vaguely described in the cross-9 complaint, and we therefore refer to Capon’s description of such conduct in his declaration to 10 determine whether it was protected or unprotected”); Brill Media Co., LLC v. TCW Grp., 132 Cal.
 11 App. 4th 324, 329 (2005).

12 Once a defendant shows that protected conduct underlies the claims, the plaintiff must 13 demonstrate a probability of prevailing by demonstrating that the claims are “both legally sufficient 14 and supported by a sufficient prima facie showing of facts to sustain a favorable judgment if the 15 evidence submitted by the plaintiff is credited.” Rusheen, 37 Cal.4th at 1056. It is not enough that 16 the claims could survive a motion to dismiss; the plaintiff must provide the court with sufficient 17 admissible evidence to permit the court to determine there is a probability the claims will prevail.
 18 See DuPont Merck Pharm. Co. v. Superior Ct., 78 Cal. App. 4th 562, 568 (2000). The court 19 considers defendant’s evidence to determine whether it defeats the claims. Traditional Cat Ass’n v.
 20 Gilbreath, 118 Cal. App. 4th 392, 398 (2004).

21 If the conduct underlying the claims is a mixture of Anti-SLAPP protected as well as 22 unprotected acts, such as here, the unprotected conduct is ignored at this first stage. Baral, 1 Cal.5th 23 at 396 (“When relief is sought based on allegations of both protected and unprotected activity, the 24 unprotected activity is disregarded at this stage”). Plaintiff must then establish that she can prevail 25 on the protected conduct portion of the claim.¹ See id. at 395 (“[I]n cases involving allegations of

26
 27 ¹ Before the California Supreme Court decided the Baral case, courts considered the “primary 28 thrust” or “gravamen” of the claim in determining SLAPP coverage. Post-Baral, allegations of protected activity give rise to SLAPP protections unless they are merely incidental or collateral

1 both protected and unprotected activity, the plaintiff is required to establish a probability of 2 prevailing on any claim for relief based on allegations of protected activity. Unless the plaintiff can 3 do so, the claim and its corresponding allegations must be stricken.”); Sheley, 9 Cal. App. 5th at 4 1165 (reversing denial of anti-SLAPP motion: “allegations of protected activity supporting these 5 claims . . . must also be eliminated unless they support a distinct claim on which respondent can 6 show a probability of prevailing”).

7 A. Plaintiff’s Allegations Regarding Administrative and Governmental Filings
 8 Are SLAPP Allegations

9 Each of Plaintiff’s allegations with respect to Kirkland’s alleged response to the D.C.
 10 unemployment agency, filings before the PTAB in connection with IPR proceedings, and Plaintiff’s 11 communications with Defense counsel regarding defects in Plaintiff’s DFEH and EEOC charges 12 fall squarely within the Anti-SLAPP statutory protections.

13 First, Plaintiff’s retaliation allegations regarding Kirkland’s alleged filings in response to 14 Plaintiff’s unemployment claim arise from (1) statements made in an official proceeding (the 15 unemployment claim pending before the D.C. Office of Employment Services), as well as (2) 16 statements regarding an issue under review in an official proceeding (Plaintiff’s claim for 17 unemployment benefits). CCP § 425.16(e)(1)-(2); Kurz v. Syrus Sys., 221 Cal. App. 4th 748, 18 759 (2013) (a “claim arising from the decision of the Unemployment Insurance Appeals Board of 19 the [Employment Development Department] . . . falls within the ‘arising from’ prong because it 20 involves the litigation of a claim for unemployment insurance benefits in an official proceeding 21 authorized by law”); Dible v. Haight Ashbury Free Clinics, 170 Cal. App. 4th 849-50 (2009)
 22 (upholding SLAPP decision: allegations that employer made false statements to unemployment 23 agency “to deny her benefits and to justify its wrongful termination by falsely representing to the 24 Employment Development Department of the State of California that she held a license and/or was 25 responsible for the inmate’s death” were unequivocally part of an “official proceeding” and qualify 26 as statements made “before a legislative, executive, or judicial proceeding, or any other official

27 and, unlike these here, are not alleged to “support a claim for recovery.” Sheley, 9 Cal. App. 5th 28 1170.

1 proceeding”). Thus, these contentions must be stricken unless Plaintiff can show a probability of 2 prevailing on them (which, as discussed below, she cannot).

3 Second, Plaintiff’s allegations regarding a filing in an IPR proceeding similarly arise from 4 (1) statements (the allegedly altered filing submitted to the PTAB) made in an official proceeding 5 (the IPR), as well as (2) statements (the allegedly altered filing) regarding an issue under review in 6 an official proceeding (the patent matters at issue in the IPR). See Compl. ¶¶88 n.18, 187 (a Patent 7 Owner Response (POR”) responds to a petition for inter partes review (“IPR”), which is a 8 proceeding before the PTAB, after PTAB has instituted proceedings);² Thryv, Inc v. Click-To-Call 9 Techs., LP, 140 S. Ct. 1367, 1368 (2020) (“Inter partes review is an administrative process that 11 of earlier granted patent claims”); Software Rts. Archive, LLC v. Facebook, Inc., No. 12-CV-03970-12 RMW, 2014 WL 116366, at *2 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 13, 2014) (IPR proceedings are designed to 13 “resemble litigation; discovery, direct and cross-examination of witnesses, and motion practice are 14 all available.”); CCP § 425.16(e)(1-2); Rohde v. Wolf, 154 Cal. App. 4th 28, 35 (2007) (“statements, 17 filing litigation or otherwise seeking administrative action”) (emphasis added) (alteration in 18 original).

19 Third, Plaintiff’s allegations regarding her communications with Defendants’ counsel 20 discussing defects in her DFEH and EEOC filings arise from statements (Defendants’ 21 correspondence and oral communications) regarding an issue under review by an official 22 proceeding (Plaintiff’s allegations pending before the DFEH and EEOC). They similarly come 23 within the SLAPP definition of writings “made in connection with an issue under consideration or 24 review by a legislative, executive, or judicial body.” See CCP § 425.16(e)(2)); see also Delman v.

1 2010) (statements covered by anti-SLAPP statute “have regularly been held to include those made 2 in the course of administrative proceedings”).

3 B. Plaintiff Cannot Meet Her Burden of Establishing a Probability of Success On 4 the Protected Allegations

5 Because Plaintiff pleads conduct protected by the anti-SLAPP statute, she must demonstrate 6 a “probability” of prevailing on these protected portions of her allegations. Baral, 1 Cal.5th at 396;
 7 Sheley, 9 Cal. App. 5th at 1163. In determining whether she has demonstrated the requisite 8 probability, the court must “consider the pleadings, and supporting and opposing affidavits stating 9 the facts upon which the liability or defense is based.” CCP § 425.16(b)(2). The statute 10 contemplates analysis of the substantive merits of the claims, as well as available defenses, 11 including the statute of limitations and applicable privileges. See Traditional Cat, 118 Cal. App.
 12 4th at 398. To meet her burden, Plaintiff must show that the protected allegations are “both legally 13 sufficient and supported by a sufficient prima facie showing of facts to sustain a favorable judgment 14 if the evidence submitted by the plaintiff is credited.” Jarrow Formulas Inc. v. LaMarche, 31
 15 Cal.4th 728, 738 (2003). As Defendants show below, these allegations are substantively meritless 16 in all respects.

17 1. The Allegations Regarding Filings Before the Unemployment Agency

18 Plaintiff cannot succeed on the merits of her contention that Defendants retaliated against 19 her by filing a false response to her unemployment benefits claim because Kirkland did not deny 20 her employment to the agency nor dispute her entitlement to unemployment benefits. As shown by 21 the Declaration of Wendy Cartland filed herewith (“Cartland Decl.”), Kirkland received and, 22 consistent with the firm’s practice, did not respond to the notice of claim Plaintiff filed with the 23 DOES agency to dispute it. Cartland Decl. ¶ 9. Because Kirkland did not dispute the existence of 24 her former employment, suggest that she was not terminated, or contend that she was terminated 25 for misconduct, her claim for benefits was not disputed and the DOES agency was free to approve 26 it. And that is precisely what the DOES agency did, finding in favor of Plaintiff’s claim. Id. ¶ 12, 27 Ex. B.

28 Those facts are demonstrated not only by Cartland’s declaration, but also in the benefits

1 award notice for the claim, which confirms that the firm did not respond to it at all (and thus did 2 not dispute Plaintiff's employment or the circumstances of her termination). Cartland Decl., Ex. B 3 ("the employer was contacted to provide separation information and supporting evidence. The 4 employer failed to respond Therefore, the claimant is qualified to receive unemployment 5 insurance benefits") (emphasis added). The benefits award notice further confirms that, in March 6 2022, the DOES agency granted the benefits retroactive to Plaintiff's termination, long before 7 Plaintiff filed this lawsuit. See id.

8 Accordingly, Plaintiff's allegation that Defendants retaliated against her by lying to the 9 DOES Agency and interfering with her claim for benefits fails on the merits, and it must be stricken.

10 2. Defendants' Edits to Plaintiff's Draft POPR Were Not Retaliatory and 11 Are Privileged

12 Plaintiff's contention that she was retaliated against with respect to the filing of a POR in 13 the IPR process is meritless both because it is false and because it is premised on privileged conduct.

14 As laid out in the Declaration of Akshay Deoras ("Deoras Decl."), the allegation that the 15 filing had anything to do with discrimination, retaliation, defamation, or any wrongdoing with 16 respect to Plaintiff is simply meritless. See Deoras Decl. ¶¶ 5, 8-10.

17 Moreover, the filing of the POR before the PTAB is absolutely privileged. As noted above, 18 the IPR process in which it was filed is a quasi-judicial proceeding designed to "resemble litigation; 19 discovery, direct and cross-examination of witnesses, and motion practice are all available." Software Rts. Archive, 2014 WL 116366, at *2; see also Compl. ¶¶ 88 n.18, 187 (a POR responds 20 to a petition for inter partes review, which is a proceeding before the PTAB, after PTAB has 21 instituted proceedings); Sanfilippo v. Brewerton, No. CV 2:17-183-RMG, 2017 WL 5591615, at 22 *2 (D.S.C. Nov. 20, 2017) ("Proceedings before the PTAB are judicial proceedings") (citing EZ 23 Loader Boat Trailers, Inc. v. Cox Trailers, Inc., 746 F.2d 375, 378 (7th Cir. 1984)); SAS Inst., Inc.
 24 v. Iancu, 138 S. Ct. 1348, 1350 (2018) ("Inter partes review allows private parties to challenge 25 previously issued patent claims in an adversarial process before the Patent Office").

27 And under California law, any "publication" made as part of a "judicial proceeding" cannot 28

1 give rise to liability because communications with some relation to judicial proceedings are 2 absolutely protected by the litigation privilege codified in Civil Code section 47(b). Kashian, 98
 3 Cal. App. 4th at 913 (“The litigation privilege is not limited to the courtroom, but encompasses 4 actions by administrative bodies and quasi-judicial proceedings”); Rusheen, 37 Cal.4th at 1057.
 5 The litigation privilege affords parties the “utmost freedom of access” to the litigation process 6 without fear of subsequent harassment by derivative actions. McClatchy Newspapers, Inc. v. Sup.
 7 Ct., 189 Cal. App. 3d 961, 970 (1987). It “is not limited to statements made during a trial or other 8 proceedings, but may extend to steps taken prior thereto.” Kashian, 98 Cal. App. 4th at 913; Action 9 Apartment Assn. v. City of Santa Monica, 41 Cal.4th 1232, 1241 (2007).

10 Because Plaintiff’s claims based on the PTAB proceedings are factually meritless and 11 premised on privileged conduct, Plaintiff cannot succeed on the merits of the allegation and it must 12 be stricken.

13 3. Defense Counsel’s Communications Regarding Plaintiffs’
 14 Administrative Claims are Absolutely Privileged

15 As Plaintiff notes, after she filed administrative charges with the EEOC and DFEH, she and 16 counsel for defendants corresponded in writing and spoke regarding her allegations. In that 17 correspondence and discussion, counsel for defendants discussed legal and factual defects in 18 Plaintiff’s allegations, asked that she not proceed with contentions that were meritless legally and 19 factually, and suggested mediation of the matter, which Plaintiff refused to consider. See 20 Declaration of Lynne Hermle (“Hermle Decl.”), Exs. A-C; Compl. ¶19.

21 The correspondence and discussions cannot serve as any basis for Plaintiff’s allegations of 22 retaliation, defamation, or any type of wrongdoing, including the allegation that it was designed “to 23 intimidate and dissuade Plaintiff from filing suit.” Compl. ¶19. Nor can it constitute evidence of 24 Defendants’ alleged “efforts to fabricate ex post facto evidence as purported support for their false 25 and malicious statements that Plaintiff was dreadfully incompetent at her job as an associate” (id.
 26 ¶182) because both the written correspondence and the oral conversation regarding Plaintiff’s 27 allegations are also absolutely privileged.

28

1 “In general, communications in connection with matters related to a lawsuit are privileged 2 under Civil Code section 47, subdivision (b).” Sylmar Air Conditioning v. Pueblo Contracting 3 Servs., Inc., 122 Cal. App. 4th 1049, 1058 (2004). The litigation privilege applies pre-litigation, 4 including “to communications preliminary to a proposed judicial proceeding, such as a demand 5 letter from an attorney to a potential adversary.” Dove Audio, Inc. v. Rosenfeld, Meyer & Susman, 6 47 Cal. App. 4th 777, 781 (1996); eCash Techs., Inc. v. Guagliardo, 210 F. Supp. 2d 1138, 1154 7 (2001) (finding that a letter pertaining to litigation “clearly fits within the conduct that is subject to 8 the protections of the ‘Anti-SLAPP’ law”); Sylmar Air, 122 Cal. App. 4th at 1058 (applying the 9 privilege to “prelitigation communications involving the subject matter of the ultimate litigation”).

10 The written correspondence and any oral communications between Plaintiff and 11 Defendants’ counsel squarely qualify as litigation privileged material, and because the privilege is 12 absolute, Plaintiff cannot overcome that privilege. She therefore cannot establish a probability of 13 success based on the protected allegations. See Bergstein v. Stroock & Stroock & Lavan LLP, 236 14 Cal. App. 4th 793, 814 (2015) (“A plaintiff cannot establish a probability of prevailing if the 15 litigation privilege precludes the defendant’s liability on the claim”); Flatley v. Mauro, 39 Cal.4th 16 299, 325 (2006) (even litigation-related conduct argued to be illegal is absolutely privileged); 17 Silberg v. Anderson, 50 Cal.3d 205, 218 (1990) (an otherwise privileged communication need not 18 have been made in the “interest of justice” to qualify for the protection of section 47).

19 Thus, each of Plaintiff’s allegations of SLAPP conduct fails on the merits and must be 20 dismissed.

21 IV. THE COURT SHOULD AWARD ATTORNEYS’ FEES

22 An award of reasonable attorney’s fees and costs to a defendant who prevails on a Section 23 425.16 motion to strike is “mandatory.” CCP § 425.16(c); Ketchum v. Moses, 24 Cal.4th 1122, 24 1131 (2001). Here, Kirkland’s Motion serves an important practical effect, eliminating highly 25 inflammatory and potentially prejudicial allegations, reducing theories Plaintiff relies upon for her 26 gender discrimination and retaliation claims, and narrowing potential discovery, including on the 27 unemployment benefits and IPR allegations and well as the communications between Plaintiff and 28

1 counsel for Defendants. Maleti v. Wickers, 82 Cal. App. 5th 181, 232 (2022) (“The order striking 2 the abuse of process claim had the practical benefit to Attorneys of narrowing the litigation, thus 3 impacting discovery, motion practice, and trial preparation. And the order eliminated the potential 4 imposition of liability under a tort theory distinct from malicious prosecution”).

5 The prevailing party may seek fees with the special motion, by subsequent motion, or by a 6 cost memorandum at the conclusion of the litigation. Am. Humane Ass'n v. L.A. Times Commc'n's, 7 92 Cal. App. 4th 1095, 1103 (2001); Doe v. Luster, 145 Cal. App. 4th 139, 144 n.4 (2006).
 8 Defendants asks the Court to find that it is entitled to reasonable fees and costs for this motion and 9 that they may submit the amount incurred upon the Court’s finding and striking the allegations 10 discussed herein.

11 V. CONCLUSION

12 The pro per status of Plaintiff here is no excuse for pleadings which defy black letter Anti-13 SLAPP law. According to Plaintiff, she is a highly talented lawyer with six years of practice (who 14 “earned a juris doctor degree, with high honors, from Emory University School of Law, where she 15 served as an articles editor on Emory Law Journal and graduated with a 3.854 GPA and class rank
 16 of 9/291, is a member of the Order of the Coif, holds a bachelor of science in applied mathematics
 17 with high honors from Georgia Institute of Technology, where she was a member of the honors 18 program”). See Compl. ¶9 n.2. She contends that she was consistently an outstanding performer at 19 trial and other litigation projects for what she describes as “one of the most prestigious law firms 20 in the United States.” Id. ¶¶ 9, 11 n.3. Even cursory research would have confirmed the impropriety 21 of these Anti-SLAPP allegations, as well as their privileged nature, and they must be stricken.
